Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Maryland Teachers Year Book: For the Information, Use and Guidance of Officials and Teachers of the Public Schools of the State of Marlyand; 1918-1919 Neither the science of education nor the art of teaching has raised teacher efficiency to so high a plane that Departments of Education arc relieved of the necessity of sending printed bulletins from time to time for teachers information and guidance. This Year-Book is sent out again to our teachers in the hope they will get hints and helps which will make schoolroom problems easier and the work of teaching more interesting. For decades there has been among educators noticeable progress toward agreement as to aims in education, general acceptance of educational principles and standards, and a noticeable upward tendency toward improving teaching methods. Though the adjustment in education has been slow, it has been steady; and with a broader knowledge of these principles, their demonstration and application have become much more general. There has been a keen desire on the part of educational agencies to find out the demands which civilization makes on the individual, and then to have the products of education fit into its niches with the least friction. School adjustment has had in mind these demands, and school instruction has been planned to meet and satisfy them, looking back over the achievements of the past century, it is fair to assume that educational procedure or development has been evolutionary rather than revolutionary. Here and there history records an occasional outbreak or departure from the ordinary which has resulted in a struggle for the supremacy of some idea in the world of education, and questions of belief have...
