The white beads were comparatively thick and probably of clam shell (venus mercenaria?) while the black or more properly purple beads were very thin and were sometimes strung double. A number of loose beads were found, and all the earth coming from the grave was sifted through the fingers before being thrown aside. In working out the grave beyond where the objects occurred it was sometimes possible to trace discolorations in the clayey soil, marking the decay of the larger bones or of the bark or matting wrapping. No stone objects were found with this burial, nor any trace whatever of other metal than copper. The body was about thirty-three centimeters below the surface, and as nearly as could be determined lay north and south at full length and with the head to the south, and the bones were those of a young person. Subsequent pitting on this knoll and adjacent areas revealed nothing further. An analysis of the copper proves it to be European rather than native American, as is shown by the following statement contained in a letter from Professor C. H. White of the Mining School of Harvard University. Cambridge, Massachusetts, July 14, 1913 Dear Mr. Manning: --At last I have as nearly completed the analysis of the copper you gave me from the Indian grave in Maine, as the size of the sample will permit. I find the following percentages of metals present: Copper 95.89 Tin 0.38 Lead 0.55...
